

Tick Soup Scramble

(Answer Key)

parasitologist
arachnids
bull's-eye rash
chemist
spores
Borrelia burgdorferi
nematodes
Lyme disease
cuticle
parasite

Wrap It Up! Hill and Allen are testing natural weapons, like nematodes or the spores of fungi, to get rid of deer ticks before they latch onto people. Ticks spread Lyme disease, which has become an important public health problem in some areas of the United States.